DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 7-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Vergani et al.

Vergani et al. (US 5,716,588) discloses a getter composition comprising iron and manganese (column 2, lines 45-55). It is taught that the iron and manganese are deposited on suitable supports including zeolites (column 4, lines 20-25). In an example, Vergani et al. teaches the preparation of aqueous solutions of manganese chloride and ferric chloride (column 6, lines 8-11). The solutions are mixed and zeolite 13x is added to the solution to form a mixture (column 6, lines 11-15). The pH of the solution is raised to 7.5 and hydroxides are precipitated and separated by filtration (column 6, lines 15-25). The precipitate is washed with an aqueous solution of ammonia and then dried and calcined to form a zeolite coated with Mn and Fe oxide (column 6, lines 25-32).

The reference does not disclose that the Mn-Fe is "nanophase" as required by claim 1; however, it is the position of the examiner that because the reference discloses the use of the same starting materials and prepares the product the same process as claimed herein, the same nanophase product would inherently be produced. When the examiner has reason to believe that the functional language asserted to be critical for establishing novelty in claimed subject matter may in fact be an inherent characteristic of the prior art, the burden of proof is shifted to Applicants to prove that the subject matter shown in the prior art does not possess the characteristics relied upon. In re Fitzgerald et al. 205 USPQ 594.

As each and every element of the claimed invention is taught in the prior art as recited above, the claims are anticipated by Vergani et al.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
4. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Christina Johnson whose telephone number is (571) 272-1176. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday-Friday, 7:30-5, with Alternate Fridays off.
